[From a late Magazine.]

To one quoting the common ſaying, Words are but Wind.

WORDS are but Wind, you ſay; but don't you know,
Wind tears up trees, and Houſes down doth blow?
Of all the elements, which can you find,
That brings to Man ſuch miſchief, as the wind?
The ſtrongeſt ſhips by the wind's fury toſt
Are daſh'd to pieces, or elſe ſunk and loſt.
Winds force the ſwelling Waves beyond the ſtrand,
And make the boiling Sea o'er-flow the land.
Winds kindle fires, and drive the raging flame
Beyond the pow'r of engines to reclaim.
Winds whirle the clouds, and cauſe the earth to quake,
Make mountains walk, trees their old ſoil forſake.
All other elements may bounded be;
But who can bound the wind which none can ſee;
Fire may be quench'd by water; water may
By dams of earth be forc'd its courſe to ſtay.
Earth may, by art, be rais'd, by art depreſt,
As ſeems to the projecting owner beſt.
But wind, unruly wind can by no force,
Can by no art be hinder'd in its courſe,
Oppoſe firm works, too ſtrong for it to pierce,
'Twill mount the higher, and become more fierce.
For human power can nothing raiſe ſo high,
O'er which the nimble wind can't ſoar and fly.
By ſwelling winds, in her deep caverns pent,
Our comonn mother's breaſt is rudely rent.
Wind in her ſtomach makes her ope her jaw,
And ſuck down cities to her ſpacious maw.
Wind in our bowels makes our vitals crack,
And far exceeds the torture of the rack.
Air is the region too, where the learn'd ſay,
Satan has greateſt pow'r his pranks to play.
Say then no more, Words are but wind, or, air,
Except thou would'ſt the two worſt things compare:
For there's a ſtrain of ſharp corroding words,
Wounds deeper, and hurts more than keeneſt ſwords.

A Grave Stone of Black Marble is to be ſent to Oakham in Surry, to be laid over the Grave of John Sprong (who was Carpenter to the late Lord Chancellor King, Baron of Ockham) with the following Inſcription:

John Sprong
Died November xvii.

Aged LX.

Who many a ſturdy Oak has laid along,
Fell'd by Death's ſurer Hatchet, here lies Sprong;
Poſts oft he made, yet ne'er a Place cou'd get,
And liv'd by Railing, tho' he was no Wit;
Old Saws he had, altho' no Antiquarian,
And Stiles Corrected, yet was no Grammarian.
Long liv'd he Ockham's premier Architect,
And laſting as his Fame, a Tomb t'erect;
Whoſe Pales and Gates were for Eternity,
So here he reſts, from all Life's Toyls and Follies,
Oh ſpare, kind Heav'n, his fellow Lab'rer Hollis. *

Briſtol, July 9. Our City was in a Sort of Conſternation laſt Saturday Evening, about half an Hour after five, at the moſt heavy and ſurprizing Storm of Rain, Thunder and Lightning that can be remembred ever to fall upon it, which laſted without Intermiſſion about three Quarters of an Hour. The Rain which came down like Sluices, ſoon flooded the Streets, many Houſes and Cellars, and did conſiderable Damage to the Furniture, Shop-keepers Goods, &c. and one Man loſt his Life near the Colledge Green. Never was ſeen ſuch a Fall of Water from the Hills, which came down with that Rapidity as though ſeveral Rivers had open'd their Banks.

London, July 25. We have lately had ſeveral Accounts of an Improvement of Land in Ireland, which, if vigorouſly purſued, muſt turn to very good Account. They have in the Kingdom a prodigious Number of Acres of Red Bog, which till now has been thought of ſo little worth, that when any Eſtates had been Sold, or Farms Lett, all ſuch Land was given in as unprofitable: but ſome time ſince a Perſon, who had a great Quantity of that ſort of Bog on his Eſtate, reſolv'd to try an Experiment on it, by draining it in a particular manner, and planting Hops thereon: This was received at firſt, as many new Projects are, as a Method of getting rid of his Money; but to his great Benefit, and their Surprize, the thing has, from the beginning, anſwer'd beyond Expectation. He has for the Publick Good, communicated the manner of doing it to the Dublin Society who have recommended it, by ſeveral Letters from their Body to thoſe Gentlemen who have any of that kind of Bog on their Eſtates, as a Method of imploying a great Number of the Poor, and inriching the Kingdom.

A Letter from Rome, dated June 29.

The Pope aſſiſted two Days ago in the Congregation of the holy Office (the Inquiſition) and his Holineſs held afterwards a particular Congregation with the Cardinals Ottoboni, Spinola and Zondini, to deliberate on the Sect, ſaid to be introduc'd into Florence under the Name of the Society of Free-Maſons; in Conſepuence of what was reſolv'd upon in that Congregation, the Father Inquiſitor, with ſeveral Officers of the Inquiſition to attend him, was ſent to Florence, with Orders to proceed againſt the Authors and Supporters of that Sect with the utmoſt Rigour. By this proceeding in the Court of Rome we ſhall now know whether there is really any Myſtery and Secret to be kept among mong the Free-Maſons, or whether it is all a Whim, for the Inquiſition has inexorable Agents for extorting Confeſſions, from even every Joint of the Body.

Journal of the Grand Imperial Army in Hungary.

The 12th of July we laid a Bridge of Boats over the Moravia, and paſs'd over a conſiderable Part of the Baggage, notwithſtanding the continual Rains we had for ſome Days paſt. At Midnight the Horſe had Orders to hold themſelves in a Readineſs to march.

The 13th, at Break of Day, the Horſe paſſed the Bridge, and poſted themſelves at a Place call'd Konigſwehr, where his Royal Highneſs the Duke of Lorrain, the Veldt-Marſhal Count Seckendorff, and ſeveral other Generals, likewiſe arriv'd. The Foot could not paſs that Day upon Account of the Inundations; Means nevertheleſs were found to poſt 23 Battalions near Ravenna, under the Command of Baron de Schmettau, General of the Train.

The 14th, both the Horſe and Foot, under Baron Schmettau's Command, march'd to the Camp laid out for them near Burakin along the River Rihaiza, where they were join'd in the Afternoon by the Foot that has been left at Jagodina. M. Bratta, Captain of Horſe, was ſent the ſame Day to the Baſhaw of Niſſa with a Trumpet, and a Letter from Count Konigſegg to the Grand Vizir, containing his Imperial Majeſty's Reaſons for not deferring any longer to fulfil his Engagements to Ruſſia: That Letter ought to have been ſent the 11th, but was hinder'd by the Inundations. At Night arriv'd an Expreſs with Advice, that Major-General Baron O Mulrian, an Iriſhman, Commandant of Belgrade, had order'd the little Fortreſs of Leſnitza, within three Leagues of Berniawar, to be attack'd by a Detachment conſiſting of a Battalion of Seckendorff's Regiment, 150 Men of the Garriſon of Belgrade, and 900 of the Militia of Servia, Horſe and Foot, under the Conduct of Count de Valvaſo, Lieutenant Colonel of Seckendorff's Regiment; that the Fortreſs had been taken, 47 Turks put to the Sword, and the reſt made Priſoners with all the Inhabitants, except a few that eſcap'd in the Woods. In that Fortreſs they took ſome Hundreds of Oxen, Sheep, &c. and two Standards: The Turks had an Aga kill'd, and another taken Priſoner, with his Wife. Of O Mulrian's Detachment but one Heyduke was kill'd and three wounded. The Militia, commanded by Major Vax, diſtinguiſh'd themſelves upon Occaſion.

The 15th, the four Regiments of Cuiraſſiers of Portugal, Zotlern, Lockowitz, and Hohonems, with the two Regiments of Dragoons of Wirtemberg and Bavaria, arriv'd in the Camp under the Command of General Count Wurmbrand; a Janiſſary alſo arriv'd here with Letters from the Baſhaw of Niſſa to the commanding General, to know why he laid a Bridge over the Morava, and approach'd with the Army: An Anſwer to which will be ſpeedily return'd by the Mouths of our Cannon. The ſame Day Lieutenant-General de Miglio was detach'd with 1800 Horſe, 12 Companies of Grenadiers, and ſome Pieces of Cannon, to poſſeſs himſelf of the Palanka Raſſeim, at ſix Leagues Diſtance from our Camp, which is at Barakin.

Yeſterday Morning departed this Life, at her Brother's Houſe in St. James's Square, in the 72d Year of her Age, the Hon. the Lady Catherine Hyde, Siſter to the Right Hon. the Earl of Clarendon and Rocheſter. By her Death a conſiderable Eſtate goes to the Lord Viſcount Cornbury, Member of Parliament for the Univerſity of Oxford, her Nephew.

[From the Magazine for July laſt]

The War between the Chriſtians and Turks ſeems now to be begun in good Earneſt; for on the 29th of laſt Month the grand Army of the Germans encamped near Belgrade, begun to enter the Turkiſh Frontiers, under the Command of the Duke of Lorrain, and when the laſt Letters came from thence, were advancing, by ſhort Marches, becauſe of the exceſſive Heats, towards Nizza, one of the beſt fortified Towns belonging to the Turks on that Frontier; from which it was conjectured, the Campaign would be opened with the Siege of that important Place. At the ſame Time another German Army, under the Command of the Prince of Saxe-Hilburghauſen, began to march into the Turkiſh Croatia, with a Deſign, as 'tis ſaid, to ſeize Bagnaluck, and then proceed to form the Siege of Zwornick; and a third German Army under the Command of Count Wallis, began to march towards Wallachia, where 'tis thought, they will be joined by the Inhabitants who ſeem all weary of the Turkiſh Yoke. The Emperor's Manifeſto, or Declaration of War, was publiſh'd at the Head of each of thoſe Armies as ſoon as they entered the Turkiſh Territories, and on the 13th Inſtant, N. S. the ſame was publiſhed at Vienna.

On the other Side, the grand Muſcovite Army, under the Count Munich, paſſed the River Bog, and entered the Turkiſh Territory of Oczakow, a well fortified City on the Euxine-Sea, in which the Turks have a Garriſon of 15000 Men: and another Muſcovite Army, commanded by General Laſci, was marching towards Precop, with a Deſign to penetrate into, and make an abſolute Conqueſt of the Crim Tartary. The laſt Letters from Warſaw ſay, the Muſcovite Army under Count Munich had actually inveſted Oczakow and that the grand Turkiſh Army, under the Command of the Prime Vizier had paſſed the Neiſter, and was marching to the Relief of that Place; ſo that we may expect to hear ſoon of a bloody Battle between thoſe two great Armies.

London, Auguſt 27. We hear, that upon the Report of her moſt Gracious Majeſty's Death, ſeveral Woollen Drapers went and bought Black Cloth at Blackwell-Hall; and that a certain great Woollen Draper near Weſt Smithfield contracted for near 1000 l. worth of Black Cloth: And that on the ſaid Report being ſo current, ſome conſiderable Mercers diſpatch'd immediately away Expreſſes to Norwich to buy up Blacks there; and ſeveral of them went into Spittle-Fields to beſpeak Black Silks, Grey Luteſtrings, &c. and Blacks and Greys immediately roſe to 20 per Cent. A Shoemaker near St. Bartholomew's being cunninger than the reſt of his Brethren, thought to make a great Advantage by his early Intelligence, and went and bought about three Dozen of Shammy Leather Shoes; and had bought more, but was refuſed by the Fraternity, who had heard the ſaid (falſe) News: The loſs to ſeveral People by this ſcandalous Report, is conſiderable; and it were to be wiſh'd the firſt Author of it could be diſcovered, and ſeverely puniſh'd. But what was very remarkable, the Blue Regiment of Train'd Bands were in the Artillery Ground, and upon hearing the News, the Soldiers were order'd not to fire, the Colours to be furled, and they march'd home with their Muskets turn'd Muzzles downward.

NEW-YORK, Octob. 24.

Laſt Saturday Night about 9 o'Clock the Ship Catherine, Jaſper Farmer Commander, arrived here in 7 Weeks from London, by whom we hear, that my Lord Delawar was then at his Country Seat, and does not ſet out for his Government of New-York till the Spring, but then intends to embarque for his ſaid Government. That Capt. Gill ſail'd through the Downs for this Port about 48 hours before Capt. Farmar, and Capt. Bryant was to ſail in 3 or 4 days after him.

We hear from Shrewsberry in New-Jerſey, that in that Townſhip, laſt week, a Pedler was met with by a Foot-Pad upon the high Road, who ask'd him if he had a chaw of Tobacco to give him; the Pedler anſwer'd, Yes, and while he was taking it out of his Pocket the Rogue took hold of his Horſes Bridle, and then ask'd him if he had any Money, for he muſt have it? The Pedler anſwered, No, for he was but newly ſet out with his Pack, &c. The Rogue pull'd out a ſharp pointed Knife, and cut his Leg, ſtab'd him in the Breaſt, and other places, cut open his Pack, wherein was ten Pound in Paper Money, which he took and made off, leaving the Man in his Blood, ſeemingly a dying; but in a little time he got to a Houſe, which was near; they ſent for a Surgeon who dreſt him, and its hop'd he will recover. Diligent ſearch has been made for the Rogue, but he is not yet taken.

PHILADELPHIA, October 27.

Yesterday the following melancholy Accident happen'd at Roxbury near this Place; as two Children of Thomas Rees's were playing in an empty Cart that stood near his Door on the Side of a very steep Hill; the Cart-wheels happen'd to move and ran violently down the Hill, and the Body of the Cart oversetting, both the Children fell out in a stony Place, and one, a Boy about ten Years of Age, was so bruis'd and wounded by the fall, that he died instantly, to the excessive Grief of his Parents: The other Child escap'd without being much hurt.

And we hear from Chester County, that a Man lately driving a Cart laden with Bricks, and leading his Child about four Years of Age, some Bricks drop'd out, which while he was picking up, the Child ran before the Carr, and unfortunately falling, the Wheel went over it, and kill'd it instantly.
